

We are pleased to announce today that the Nerd Force Franchise Company has awarded two new franchise territories and extended its already strong presence in the New York Metropolitan area to reach more businesses and residential customers in Long Island, New York.

These new franchises will primarily serve Nassau County (including Glen Cove, Sea Cliff, Glen Head, Brookville, Glenwood Landing, Locust Valley, Bayville, Mill Neck, Oyster Bay, Greenvale, Roslyn, Roslyn Heights, Old Westbury, Syosset, Port Washington, Jericho, Hicksville and Westbury).

The new owner and operator, Mr. Marvin Tate of Tate Support Group commented "Joining Nerd Force is key to help me grow my company quickly. Not only do I get a significant marketing boost, but I acquire the credibility of being part of a larger organization and that combined with the managed services gives me the ability to go after much larger clients. I have been very impressed by what Ilir Sela achieved in Staten Island and I also have great confidence in the managed services that Nexus provides - for before setting up my existing business, the Tate Support Group, I used to work at Nexus, so I am familiar with the high level of customer service which they deliver and expect".

Boris Adlam, the Nerd Force Franchise Company President, professed that he was "delighted that the Company is expanding so quickly on the East Coast. The fact that Marvin has chosen to come on board as a new franchisee, is a great vote of confidence given his earlier employment with the parent company and this bodes well for the future. I believe we have the perfect product for the uncertain times - most companies will be looking to contain their IT budgets, for which outsourcing and managed services are ideal - and a subsection of those companies may even cease trading, providing us with a large pool of talent from which to draw upon to set up new franchises across the nation. I expect we will shortly have more good news on the franchise development front."
